Ensuring your learning meets the needs of your employer and future employers

With experience being vital in today's competitive job market, a postgraduate who has professional experience in addition to theoretical knowledge will be highly regarded by employers. At DMU, we provide our students with the highest standard of study so that you are equipped with the skills and experience to progress or change your career. Designed with employability in mind, the LLM in Medical Law and Ethics is highly relevant in today's competitive marketplace. With continual input from leading employers and professional bodies, we ensure that the course will equip you with the professional skills and practical experience that businesses are looking for.

Why study by distance learning?

Increasingly we all face more pressures in our business lives. Finding the time to attend courses of any kind can be very difficult and well-meant plans are often put aside indefinitely. Distance learning is the solution to your training needs:

- Enjoy the full benefits of studying for a recognised UK university qualification whilst still in full-time employment
- Take control of where and when you learn and decide the rate at which you study
- Retain industry leading course materials for future reference
- Apply your learning, knowledge, skills and expertise to your work straight away and help to further your career
- Network with tutors and like-minded professionals from around the world

With courses being delivered at different levels, distance learning can meet the needs of a truly diverse student body. High competition for jobs means having additional training and education can be a real advantage, whether you are in the market for a new career or simply want to progress in your existing position.

Who should study this programme?

The course is designed to cater for lawyers and non-lawyers. Therefore it is suitable for actual/intending lawyers in the fields of:

- clinical negligence litigation
- mental health
- bioethics
- human rights
- resource allocation and treatment decisions relating to patients lacking decision-making capacity

The course will also be suitable for all healthcare professionals with direct responsibility for patient care, particularly those caring for psychiatric patients, as well as clinicians engaged in medical research. NHS Trust staff concerned with clinical governance, risk management or with resourcing decisions will also find the course of direct value.

"I found the Termination of Life module particularly useful and interesting, given the topical nature of euthanasia. On a personal level, I have been selected to undertake two mini-pupillage placements at Chambers and have given numerous guest lectures in Higher Education. I hope the opportunities to use this Masters Degree will continue to flourish."

K. Portlock, LLM Medical Law and Ethics

Your Course Tutors Include:

David Bate QC
David teaches on the Expert Evidence module. He has recently retired to Northern Ireland, having practised criminal law from Hollis Whiteman Chambers. He has acted as president of Mental Health Review Tribunals and appeared in a number of homicide cases where the mental health of the defendant has been in issue. He is also a part time tutor at Queen's University Belfast, teaching advocacy.

Patty Healey BA (Hons) Health Studies, Post Graduate Diploma in Law (PGDL), Legal Practice Course (LPC), Registered General Nurse (RGN), LLM (Business Law)
Patty was formerly a full time Senior Lecturer in Law and Medicine at DMU, where she taught on both the post and undergraduate programmes. She now teaches part time on the LLM Medical Law and Ethics programme and the Graduate Diploma in Law programme for ILEX. She also gives guest lectures to a variety of healthcare professionals on legal issues at the end of life, consent, human rights law in the healthcare arena and legal aspects in GP commissioning.

"Once people knew that I was studying for an LLM in medical law and ethics I was asked to present to a number of different teams within hospitals, especially about consent. Since becoming a consultant I have been requested to contribute to a number of different projects largely because of my LLM, examples being an end of life group and a patient safety group."

J. Meikle, LLM Medical Law and Ethics

Course Syllabus and Structure

The course commences with an optional induction weekend in Leicester which takes place on 19th, 20th and 21st September 2014, and thereafter the study of the Core Module, "Introduction to Medical Law and Ethics" (worth 30 credits) which is studied from September 2014 through to the end of December 2014 and is assessed by written coursework. From January to December 2015, students continue with their studies choosing two 30 credit modules or one 30 and two 15 credit modules (giving a total of 90 credits for the first year of study). In the second year, January to December 2016, students take either one 30 credit module or two 15 credit modules and write a 15,000 word dissertation on a topic of their choice on a legal issue within the context of medical law. As an alternative to the LLM, students may elect to study for a Postgraduate Diploma by following the modules as described above but without having to write the dissertation, or for a Postgraduate Certificate by studying 60 credits (the core module and 30 additional credits).

MODULE	CREDITS	CREDIT TOTAL	AWARD
Year 1 (15 months) September 2014 – December 2015
Core Module	30
Two 30 Credit Modules or One 30 Credit Module & Two 15 Credit Modules	60	90	Postgraduate Certificate (if passed 60 credits)
Year 2 January 2016 – December 2016
One 30 Credit Module or Two 15 Credit Modules	30	120	Postgraduate Diploma
PLUS 15,000 Word Dissertation	60	180	Master of Laws (LLM)

Flexible Study Options

The Medical Law and Ethics course forms part of a wider LLM programme at Leicester De Montfort Law School and for added flexibility, in addition to the Medical Law and Ethics modules available, students may choose to study modules from the other LLM pathways – Business Law; Employment Law and Practice; Environmental Law and Practice; Food Law; International Business Law; Sports Law and Practice and International Human Rights Law. To gain a named award in Medical Law and Ethics, the Core Module plus one full 30 credit module from Medical Law and Ethics must be studied. The dissertation must also fall within the scope of Medical Law and Ethics. Thereafter there is freedom of choice across all pathways. Students may alternatively choose a general LLM in Law by studying the core module from any pathway, plus any selection of optional modules and a dissertation on a topic of the student's own choice.

The Dissertation

In year two LLM students write a 15,000 word dissertation on a topic from their chosen area of study. The dissertation is an in-depth study of a specific area of law which provides an opportunity for analysis, leading to a critical review, conclusion or recommendation on an element or elements of relevant law in the UK or elsewhere. The dissertation will be completed under the supervision of a member of the teaching staff for the course.

The Accelerated Route

Students can undertake to do the course following the Accelerated Route and complete their LLM in 15 months. Students will enrol in September 2014 along with the other students on the programme and study the Core Module until the end of December 2014. Accelerated Route students will then undertake to study all of their modules and write their dissertation within the remaining 12 months (January to December 2015). This is a very intensive but rewarding route and successful students will graduate with their LLM at the end of 15 months. Accelerated Route students are supported through the allocation of a special director of studies who will provide additional support and advice during their studies.

Weekend Seminars

The course commences with an optional induction weekend on 19th, 20th and 21st September 2014 at Leicester De Montfort Law School. After that there are four further optional one-day study days (on Saturdays) per year of study. The Induction Weekend is intended to assist students in their choice of option modules, allow meetings with course tutors and fellow students and provide useful introductory sessions especially for those students who do not have a degree in law or some other relevant legal qualification. Other study days concentrate on tutorial work in the Core Module and chosen subjects and students have the opportunity to listen to guest speakers, discuss the course and be involved in specialist debate and analysis on specific areas of relevant law.

Distance Learning LLM

Frequently Asked Questions about the Distance Learning Programme with Leicester De Montfort Law School

How do I enrol on the course?

Complete the Application Form attached to this brochure and send it to Richard Morgan, Informa Professional Academy (IIR Ltd.), 3rd Floor, Maple House, 149 Tottenham Court Road, London, W1T 7AD, UK Tel: +44 (0)20 7017 4752 together with copies of ALL your relevant certificates and qualifications and a copy of photo ID such as a passport. Alternatively you can scan your application form and all supporting documentation and send it to: richard.morgan@informa.com. You can also apply online at: www.informadl.com/medical. Your application is then sent to the Admissions Tutor at De Montfort University for consideration and you will be notified in writing by Informa Professional Academy on the outcome of your application.

Do I need to have a Law Degree?

No. The standard entry requirements for the course are either a degree in law or another discipline from a UK university or a relevant professional qualification or an equivalent international qualification which indicates an ability to study at the postgraduate level. Whilst some background knowledge of law is useful, a degree in law is not essential.

How will I access the relevant reading materials?

It is important to realise that the materials provided are not self-contained but point towards the books, articles, cases, statutes and reports which you will need to read. Online links are provided via the course website to various on-line legal resources which Leicester De Montfort Law School subscribe to, such as LexisLibrary and Westlaw. It is, nonetheless, important to have access to a good law library. The Leicester De Montfort Law School Law Librarian is available to help throughout the course.

What does the course cost?

The course fees for students enrolling in September 2014 are £3900 per year of study. Total LLM course fee is £7800 and the fee for the Accelerated Route is £8200. The fee for the Postgraduate Diploma is £5600 and the fee for the Postgraduate Certificate is £2800. Fees include the provision of all course materials, tuition costs, access to relevant on-line legal resources at Leicester De Montfort Law School such as LexisLibrary and Westlaw, the Induction Weekend and four further Study Days. Please note that travel and accommodation costs are not included in the fees and must be covered by the student. Full payment of course fees is required before the start of the course (i.e. by 18th September 2014) or within 28 days of receipt of your invoice, whichever is sooner.

Are you seeking Advanced Standing?

Where you have previously studied taught modules at postgraduate level, it may be possible to exempt you from parts of the LLM and you could obtain the LLM by studying fewer modules at a reduced course fee. For more information, please call +44 (0) 20 7017 5906 or visit www.informadl.com/medical

What format do the modules take?

The modules come in the form of hard copy print or as PDF documents via the course website. The hard copy modules are bound together and sent out as booklets. If you choose the Negotiated Study module, the content may consist of "free-standing" elements of existing 30 credit modules.

Please note that the first set of modules is quite bulky, so please ensure that you provide an address where these can be safely delivered.

How will I receive my modules?

The hard copy modules will be sent to you by post. It is strongly recommended for ALL students living outside the UK that they opt to receive their materials by air courier. This will ensure the safe and timely delivery of course materials. Failure to choose the air courier option will result in the delayed arrival of your materials. There will be an additional nominal charge of £200 for air courier.

Materials sent by air courier will be delivered to your requested module mailing address between 8.30am and 6.00pm Monday to Friday only and will require a signature. The mailing address you provide must be manned during these hours and you must provide a contact telephone number or email address that you can be reached at between 8.30am and 6.00pm Monday to Friday.

How will my work be assessed?

The Core Module is studied from 19th September 2014 through to the end of December 2014 and will be assessed by written coursework. Final assessment of the 15 and 30 credit modules and the project is based on the submission of assignments. All of the modules contain clear instructions about written work. 30 credit modules have two compulsory assignments. The first assignment is 4,000 words long while the second is an integrative piece and is 6,000 words long. 15 credit modules have one compulsory assignment of 5,000 words in length. In both cases you can choose to submit one item in draft for comment before making a final submission.

How long will I spend studying each module?

People study at different rates, but we estimate that you will need to study around 150 hours per 15 credit module, including time spent on assignments.

Accreditation

This distance learning programme has been accredited by the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA) with up to 100% of your CPD requirement for both years of study. In order to achieve 100% you must complete all coursework and attend all face-to-face Study Days. You must advise the SRA of your intention to attend the course, giving details of the start and finish dates. Leicester De Montfort Law School will supply confirmation on completion of each year of the course, which should be attached to the training record, which is open to inspection by the SRA. Attendance on the course may also fulfil a percentage of your Bar Standards Board CPD requirements.

Group discounts

If you and a colleague(s) are applying for the full LLM programme in 2014, your organisation may be eligible to receive a discount of 20% off the 2nd and subsequent applications. Applications must be received at the same time, from the same company and site, on the same course and for the same academic intake. (To qualify, please ensure that application forms and supporting documents are received at the same time). This discount is valid for more than one student applying for the accelerated route. This discount is also valid for use with the £150 discount which is applicable if you pay the full LLM fee before the start of the course. If a student withdraws from or is not accepted onto the course the discount will be invalidated. Please call Informa for more information on: +44 (0)20 7017 5906.

Can I cancel my application?

Cancellations must be received in writing before 18th September 2014. You will receive a full refund less an administrative charge of £200. No refunds will be made in respect of cancellations after this date, and the full fee will be payable
