He has published over 45 educational articles regarding HIPAA compliance, been featured in Part B News articles, the Report on Patient Privacy, provided a guest post in the Electronic Health Reporter, interviewed and provided comments to Hospital Access Management

Overview :

Being in compliance with HIPAA in 2018 involves not only ensuring you provide the appropriate patient rights and controls on your uses and disclosures of protected health information, but you also have the proper policies and procedures in place. If audited or the subject of a breach investigation you will be required to show the government you have all the necessary documentation in place for safeguarding patient Protected Health Information and indicate how you addressed all required security safeguards. This starts with the fundamentals of a HIPAA compliance program.

If your healthcare practice, business, or organization needs to understand how to put HIPAA compliance program in place or make sure the current program is adequate and can withstand government scrutiny, please join us for this informative and interactive 1-day training course led by an industry leader and expert in HIPAA regulatory requirements.

Why you should attend:

The HIPAA Security and Privacy Official is the backbone of any organization's compliance program. Covered Entities and Business Associates must designate members of the workforce to handle this regulatory requirement. Often times this role is assigned as collateral duty in smaller organizations. Regardless the size of an organization, the HIPAA Security and Privacy Official must know all the requirements for compliance. This is a critical element of the position.

Attendees will leave the course clearly understanding the role and all the requirements as the designated as a HIPAA Security and Privacy Official. This one day comprehensive seminar will cover reviews, creation, and amending policy and procedure. After completing this course, a HIPAA Security and Privacy Official will have a clear understanding for what needs to be place when it comes to all of the HIPAA regulations.

Areas Covered in the Session:

- Why was HIPAA created?
- What are HITECH and the Omnibus Rule?
- Why You Must Comply with HIPAA Requirements
- What are the HIPAA Security and Privacy Rules?
- What is a HIPAA Compliance Program?
- What is a HIPAA Risk Management Plan?
- Review of HIPAA Privacy & Security Officials Job Responsibilities
- What are Administrative, Technical, and Physical Safeguards Requirements?
- Understanding the Business Associate Relationships and Managing the Process
- What is a HIPAA Risk Assessment?
- What are HIPAA training requirements?
- What is a HIPAA data breach and what happens if it occurs?
- HIPAA Violation Case Examples & Lessons Learned
- Making Your Sanction Policy Work for You
